Dear SACRPH 2019 Participants,

On behalf of the SACRPH 2019 Program Committee, the Local Arrangements Committee, and everyone who has worked hard for the past two years to prepare for this event, we welcome you to Northern Virginia for the Eighteenth National Conference on Planning History.

In the more than three decades since our first meeting in 1986, SACRPH has grown tremendously and sought to become a more diverse and inclusive organization. The range of the research being presented this year in nearly seventy paper sessions and roundtables suggests the extent to which we have been successful and reminds us that there is always more work to do.

We are particularly indebted to the Program Committee, which enthusiastically reviewed all paper and panel proposals and helped us assemble sessions. Thank you, too, to everyone who will serve as Chairs and Commentators—your participation in this conference makes all the difference. SACRPH President Brad Hunt and his staff at the Newberry Library provided invaluable technical expertise in coordinating the submissions and review process. We also want to offer a special thanks to Paige Glotzer for her advocacy in support of and guidance in securing hearing accommodations. Speakers: use your microphones!

In keeping with SACRPH tradition, our fantastic Local Arrangements Committee, chaired by Virginia B. Price, has devised numerous opportunities to explore the planning history of Northern Virginia. Thursday’s pre-conference tour highlights the ongoing transformation of Arlington County, followed by a plenary discussion focused on the history and present-day challenges facing Arlington’s immigrant communities. On Friday, two mobile workshops, one on renewal and redevelopment in Alexandria and one on the construction and revitalization of Crystal City, highlight the planning history of a historic port city and a paradigmatic postwar landscape. On Sunday, conference participants may select between two half-day tours, one focused on postwar commercial and residential development, the other on Arlington’s suburban character and metropolitan presence.

We are especially looking forward to the conference’s two luncheons and three receptions, where participants can enjoy special programming and a chance to socialize. Plenary luncheons on Friday and Saturday feature Joel Garreau’s reflections on Edge Cities and a discussion between Margaret O’Mara and Amy Liu about Amazon’s role in Arlington’s regional economic development. Friday evening, National Airport’s Historic Terminal A provides a striking backdrop for a reception and conversation between Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor and Rhonda Williams on race and the real estate industry. A Graduate Student Reception will immediately follow in the DoubleTree Lobby Bar. Join us at the SACRPH Awards and Reception on Saturday evening to celebrate some of the best recent research in planning history and take in the spectacular views from the hotel’s 14th floor.

As SACRPH 2019 Program Committee Co-chairs, we feel privileged to have assisted in the creation of the program and for the opportunity we have had to learn about all of you and your work. We look forward to a stimulating and productive conference.

SACRPH 2019 Accessibility Guidelines
SACRPH 2019 is placing a high priority on accessibility, and we ask for the support of all participants to ensure that those with disabilities are accommodated. This means practices that require the buy-in of everyone.

The SACRPH 2019 Program Committee requests that participants embrace the following guidelines:

1) All plenary sessions will have assistive listening devices (available at off-site sessions and the Registration Desk) to support those with low hearing.

2) Every room, no matter how small, will have at least two microphones, one of which will be wireless. Chairs, commenters, panelists, and audience members are expected to use the microphones, no matter how loudly they can speak.

3) Audio or video used in conference presentations should be captioned or printed transcriptions should be provided, and images should be briefly described by presenters in case people cannot see them.

4) Consider providing 3-5 copies of access papers or an access outline of your presentation. Access papers are non-circulating copies of a paper or an outline that does not leave the room. At least two should be in large-print for audience members with low vision. Audience members can use these access documents rather than solely rely on hearing.

We ask for everyone’s help in following and collectively enforcing these guidelines, as adherence will make the conference better for others. Please remember that disabilities can be visible or invisible, and avoid assumptions about how colleagues are able to participate in the conference. Instead, we want to create an environment that is accessible for as many people as possible.

SACRPH 2019 has prioritized and invested in accessibility, but we acknowledge that people may need different or additional accommodations. Please contact the Registration Desk with questions or concerns, or seek out SACRPH 2019 Program Committee Members, listed earlier, to discuss how SACRPH can advance its desire to be an accessible conference in the future.

Registration Desk is open Thursday from Noon – 6:00 pm

Opening Tour, 2:00 – 5:00 pm

Arlington in Transformation

This tour examines the innovative planning initiatives undertaken in Arlington County along the Metrorail corridor from Rosslyn to Ballston as well as the communities that coexist with the high density, urban clusters. These communities reflect an earlier model of design around residential and retail development in Arlington’s signature garden apartment complexes of the inter-world war and World War II era and, as the automobile became more prevalent, neighborhoods of low-density, low-scale single family houses that give the county its suburban character.

Participants will investigate the reorientation of 1960s Crystal City and 1970s Rosslyn to the street and witness the effects of Smart Growth planning along Wilson Boulevard over the past 40 years. Case studies in city and regional planning – past and present – will be presented at the Wilson School and Queens Court in West Rosslyn, in Ballston Quarter, along Columbia Pike, and in Shirlington to illustrate Arlington’s transformation over the last century.

Join us for on-site discussions with local planners, developers, affordable housing advocates, and community leaders influencing Arlington in Transformation through Smart Growth planning and place-making. We will examine the successes, and failures, of planning in Arlington and the risks inherent in pricing out diversity and serving a transient population of foreign nationals, government workers, and military personnel.

The tour will conclude in Shirlington for our opening plenary and reception for all conference participants and accompanying persons at Busboys and Poets Café (see next page).

Tour Facilitators:

Robert J. Duffy, FAICP, Planning Director, Arlington County Department of Community Planning, Housing, and Development (CPHD)

Opening Plenary and Reception, 5:30 – 8:00 pm

For those not on the tour, a shuttle bus will transport conference attendees from the DoubleTree to the Busboys and Poets Cafe in Shirlington beginning at 5:00 pm. Buses will begin shuttling attendees back to the DoubleTree, beginning at 7:15 pm and ending at 8:15 pm.

The plenary will last from 5:30 pm until 6:45 pm, and then a reception of beverages and appetizers will follow until 8:00 pm.

The Immigrant and African American Experience in Northern Virginia

Our hour-long opening plenary focuses on the history and present challenges facing Arlington County’s diverse, immigrant-rich communities. The county has substantial populations from Asia (especially Vietnam, Cambodia, the Philippines), Central America (El Salvador, Mexico, Peru), and Africa (Kenya, Ethiopia, Somalia), as well as a long-standing African American community. Our panelists will reflect on the role of immigrants and long-time minority residents in shaping the space and shape of communities such as Chirilagua, Nauck, and Columbia Pike.

Panelists:

Krystyn Moon, Associate Professor and Program Director of American Studies, University of Mary Washington

Dr. Alfred O. Taylor, Jr., author of Bridge Builders of Nauck/Green Valley: Past and Present (2015), and past president of the Green Valley Civic Association, Arlington

A Planning Revival: A Praxis of Public Engagement

In order to bridge the professional and academic sphere, this plenary presents a proposal to the SACRPH membership: develop a theory and practice working group within SACRPH to deepen its public engagement. As a potential example of such engagement, Julian Chambliss has invited James Benderson, the Town Planner of Eatonville, to explain the need for a better understanding of the discriminatory legacies of planning and property in African American heritage communities and to invite SACRPH to participate in conversations with elected officials sponsored by Eatonville at the annual Zora Neale Hurston Festival of the Arts and Humanities. The panelists will also engage in a roundtable discussion around an agenda of public engagement and public scholarship for SACRPH.

Panelists:

Julian Chambliss, Professor of English, Michigan State University

James Benderson, Town Planner, Eatonville, Florida

Andrea R. Roberts, Assistant Professor, Department of Landscape Architecture and Urban Planning, Texas A &M University, College of Architecture

Mobile Workshop 1: Preserving Alexandria: Historic Renewal and Redeveloped History

During Panel Session 1, this bus and walking workshop will travel from the DoubleTree Hotel by bus to Old Town Alexandria, where we will examine City Hall/Market Square and the evolution of the working waterfront. The workshop will interrogate the two as case studies in restoration, reuse, and urban renewal in the nation’s third oldest historic district. On-site analysis raises questions of what is – and was – considered historic and of how city planning approaches are measured over time. The walk begins at City Hall and continues along King Street to the Torpedo Factory and Waterfront Park, before returning to the DoubleTree. Join us on a journey into planning history within a context of historic preservation and a discussion of national trends and local experience in George Washington’s hometown.

Workshop Facilitators:

- Catherine K. Miliaras, AICP, Principal Planner, Historic Preservation, City of Alexandria Department of Planning and Zoning
- John H. Sprinkle, Jr., PhD, Bureau Historian, National Park Service

Friday Lunchtime Plenary, 12:15 – 1:45 pm

Edge City Revisited

In 1991, journalist Joel Garreau published Edge City: Life on the New Frontier, a look at large-scale developments in suburban areas across the U.S., what he calls “information age, 21st-century nodes where the majority of Americans now live, work, play, pray, socialize, shop, grow up and grow old.” Garreau labeled Tysons Corner, a Fairfax County suburb (and the subject of a SACRPH tour on Sunday) the “quintessential” edge city. Join us for a presentation and conversation with Garreau as he reflects on his 1991 book and looks to the future of cities.

Local Arrangements Mobile Workshop 2: Crystal City to National Landing

Meet in Lower Lobby

During Panel Session 2, this walking workshop in mid-century planning examines the development of Crystal City in the 1960s and its revitalization in the 2000s. The architectural landscape of Crystal City with its superblocks, speckled concrete, and underground shopping is distinctive to the region and, in some ways, anticipated the contained living and office spaces constructed in the decades that followed. Participants will meet with representatives of Arlington County, the Crystal City Business Improvement District, and JBG Smith at 18th Street to discuss the place-making initiatives of the postwar period, and today, in the context of Amazon HQ2 and rebranding of Crystal City as National Landing.

The walking tour component follows this welcome at the 18th Street marketing center, and includes the Underground and Crystal Drive, Metropolitan Park, and Pen Place, each a signature element in Crystal City’s planning history and distinctive spatial experience.

Note: Participants will meet in the lobby of the DoubleTree Hotel for the workshop. A shuttle bus will take the group to 18th Street by way of key points of interest in Crystal City’s evolution from the 1960s to the present: Crystal Houses, WeWork, and 23rd Street.

Workshop Facilitators:

J. Kris Krider, AICP, LEED Green Associate, Planning Supervisor, Arlington County Department of Community Planning, Housing, and Development

Robert Mantle, Chief Operating Officer, Crystal City Business Improvement District

Big Tech in the City: Amazon in Arlington and the future of regional economic development

After a nation-wide competition, Amazon announced in November 2018 that it planned to build its HQ2 in New York and Arlington's Crystal City neighborhood. Amazon subsequently dropped its plans for New York but is pressing ahead to rebrand Crystal City as “National Landing.” What does this competition and its aftermath tell us about the power of a global corporation to influence local land use and planning, and of the ways in which large technology companies are shaping 21st century metropolitan geography? Margaret O’Mara, author of the new book The Code: Silicon Valley and the Remaking of America (Penguin Press, July 2019), and Amy Liu, a leading expert and strategic thinker in city and regional economic growth and planning, will discuss how and why Amazon ended up in Arlington, the local and regional dynamics shaping its arrival, and the implications for planners and scholars of the American city.

Panelists:

Margaret O’Mara, Howard & Frances Keller Professor of History, University of Washington

Amy Liu, Vice President and Director, Metropolitan Policy Program and the Adeline M. and Alfred I. Johnson Chair in Urban and Metropolitan Policy, Brookings Institution

Sunday Tours

Sunday Tour A, Sunday, November 3, 8:30 am – Noon

Edge City and Planned Suburbia: Tysons Corner and Reston

Just beyond Arlington County lie quintessential examples of post-war commercial and residential development. The Edge City known as Tysons continues its evolution from a 1950s Virginia crossroads to a 21st-century behemoth, with two major shopping malls, numerous corporate headquarters, convention hotels, and – most recently – Metro access. The latter signaled an effort to “urbanize” Tysons through higher density development and new place-making. Roughly 15 minutes down the road, the planned-community of Reston offers a look at mid-1960s planning. Developed by Robert E. Simon, Reston is influenced by Garden City principles, emphasizing preservation of open space, complete community amenities, and a variety of housing types. Our bus and walking tour will take us into the center of these communities to understand their origins and more recent adaptations.

Tour Facilitator:

Shelley Mastran, Professor in Practice, Department of Urban Affairs and Planning, Virginia Tech – National Capital Region and Immediate Past Board Chair, Reston Historic Trust and Museum

Sunday Tour B, Sunday, November 3, 9:00 am – Noon

Arlington Urban?

In this bus tour we are guided through the urbanization of Arlington’s downtown in the Clarendon neighborhood and learn about the communities affected by the shifts in the architectural landscape. Catalysts for change stem from the County’s commitment to a Smart Growth planning model, and while the successes in density, design, and development are evident, the loss of midcentury modern, commercial buildings and the relocation of the region’s Little Saigon may not be. Participants will discover both as the tour moves from Clarendon on the Rosslyn/Ballston metro corridor to the Eden Center at the western edge of the county. In Clarendon, we will rediscover Little Saigon and at the Eden Center, we will experience the vibrancy of the Vietnamese community today and its cultural heritage.

Note: There are walking elements to the tour. Tasting at the Eden Center is included.

Tour Facilitators:

Elizabeth Morton, Associate Professor of Practice, Urban Affairs and Planning, Virginia Tech – National Capital Region

Kim O’Connell, Independent Researcher and Writer, author of Echoes of Little Saigon: Vietnamese Immigration and the Changing Face of Arlington
